Imported (Product of Germany)

Anyone who has ever tasted it will henceforth be able to recognize the genuine Black Forest ham with closed eyes: the deliciously-aromatic flavor is absolutely unique. Just as typical is the special color, created by the smoking. In addition to this there is another special characteristic for this delicacy: only one specialty coming from this region may bear the protected name of "Black Forest ham".

ADLER Black Forest is made of selected gammon. Finely seasoned according to traditional recipes and salted by hand, the ham remains in salt for a couple of weeks. Subsequent to this, it is smoked with a mixture of green pine twigs, sawdust and wood chips made of Black Forest fir trees. In the course of the smoking period, which lasts three weeks, the ham then obtains its typical smoky color. Once this has been completed, it has to rest and mature: after 12 weeks the ham is ready for consumption.

Imported (Product of Canada)

It all started in 1957, when a young master butcher, Wilhelm Huber, opened a small shop in Waterloo, Ontario. Using family recipes, and traditional meat processing methods passed down through the generations, he crafted great tasting deli meats inspired by his family's European heritage. Two years later, his brothers Edward and Heinrich joined the company.

From those humble beginnings, Piller's has become one of North America's largest producers of European quality products. After five generations of master butchers, Piller's still uses the same natural aging, curing, and hardwood smoking process from over sixty years ago.

CHEESE

Imported & Domestic

Many factors determine the quality of the cheese. From the aroma to the texture, every cheese is an expression of the specific place where the cheese making process has been perfected over centuries.

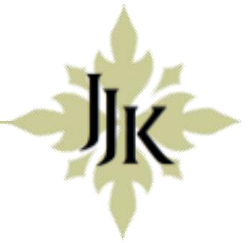

The exquisite flavor of the cheese that brings it alive can be attributed to the dairy raised in the specific locality, the weather of the region and under who's supervision the cheese is made. This is why the cheese you purchase from supermarkets are bland in comparison and do not come close to artisan cheese that are available from JJ&K Distributors.
